Protecting your Criminal History

At times, a minor offence concerning property and dishonesty can have minor punitive elements handed down by a court. However, the repercussions of having a conviction of this nature far outweigh the punishment from the courts. Nearly all employers today require some form of a character reference or criminal check before offering a job to an individual. Do not let yourself become vulnerable to having a job given to another candidate because of a minor fraudulent offence you committed years prior.

You need the best legal team to defend or mitigate the charges to avoid harsh sentencing options being discretionarily handed down by the Magistrate. Here at David Tamanika Solicitors, we have experienced lawyers who can get you the best possible result.
